⇨ Solstice FireWall-1 has three major components: (1) an advanced Inspection Module or Firewall Module, (2) a Management Module, and a(3) Router Security Module.

[1] • All FireWall-1 products require a license password to enable them, available from a SunSoft license center. Media includes software for Solaris 2 (SPARC and Intel), Solaris 1 (SunOS 4.1.x), and Microsoft NT 3.5.1 and 4.0 (Intel).

  • This product can be sold worldwide, except for those countries embargoed by the U.S. Government (Cuba, Iran, Iraq, Libya and North Korea).

[2] • All Security Center products provide the same features and functionality. Each specific product in this category will protect a network of 25, 50, 100 or 250 nodes, accordingly.

  • The Security Center products contain a built-in FireWall Module and Management Console. The Management Console and the FireWall Module MUST be run on the same system. These products cannot control other Inspection Modules or FireWall Modules, nor be controlled by an Internet Security Center.

  • All Security Centers provide perimeter defense for a corporate network connected to the Internet or provide internal security for a corporate subnet connected to a corporate intranet.

  • All these products can be upgraded to protect larger networks (Tradeups), support virtual private networking between firewalls and between a firewall and remote PC users (see Encryption Modules).

[3] • The Internet Security Center supports an unlimited number of nodes in the protected network or subnet. The Internet Security Center contains a built-in FireWall Module and a Management Console. The Management Console can be run on the same system or on different systems, to allow greater physical security of the firewall server system or to support remote or from-home management. This product can be upgraded to manage one or more Bay Networks routers.

[4] • FireWall-1 version 3.0 Internet Gateway Enterprise Center Products:

  - These products can be upgraded to support virtual private networking and remote PC users, and support protected node load-balancing.

  - These products can be upgraded to manage one or more Cisco or Bay Networks routers.

  - The DES Security Center and Security/Load Balance product includes a license for the right to use SecuRemote on an unlimited number of   Microsoft Windows 95 client PCs.

- The Inspection Module provides a SUBSET of the network security features and supports the same applications as the Security Center products. This subset consists of access control, client and session authentication, network adress translation and auditing.
- Unlike the Security Center products, the Inspection Module does NOT contain a management component. The Inspection Modules must be controlled by an Enterprise Management Console (sold via SunSoft) or Internet Security Center.
- This products can be upgraded to support virtual private networking and remote PC users (see Encryption Modules).

- The Firewall Module provides the same network security features and supports the same applications as the Security Center products. These products provide all the features of the Inspection Module, plus user authentication, comment security and multiple firewall synchronisation.
- Unlike the Security Center products, the Firewall Module does NOT contain a management component. The Firewall Module must be controlled by an Enterprise Management Console (sold via SunSoft) or Internet Security Center.

[3]
- This product can be sold worldwide, except for those countries embargoed by the U.S. Government (Cuba, Iran, Iraq, Libya and North Korea).
- The FWZ1 Encryption Module is an add-on to any Security Center, Inspection Module, or Fierwall Module.
- The FWZ1 Encryption Module uses the Checkpoint encryption algorithm to support Virtual Private Networking between two firewalls and between a firewall and remote PCs (SecuRemote). This product includes a license for the right to use SecuRemote on an unlimited number of Windows 95 client PCs.
- This product and all other products with FWZ1 encryption have the same functionality as equivalent products in the "VPN" series of earlier releases.

[4]
- The Router Control Module is an add-on to any Security Center, Inspection Module or Firewall Module.
- The Router Control Module manages a single Cisco IOS or Bay Networks router.
